HOTEL MEN ARE NOT SATISFIED

Although Policemen's Clubs Kept Hospital Ambulance Busy.

TO CALL ON GOVERNOR.

Waiters Union Deny That Members Bombarded Hotels and Restaurants —Say Youths are Offenders.

New York, Jan. 25.—Despite the fact that the police clubbed heads with an abandon that kept the hospital ambulance busy during the waiters' strike riots last night the hotel men today declared themselves dissatisfied with the protection given them by the department. Proprietors of the big hotels and restaurants around which the disturbances raged said they would apply to Sheriff Harburger for more adequate protection and if that does not result in safeguarding their places and patrons against what they termed the "unruly mobs" they would call on the governor for the militia.

At the headquarters of the waiters' Union today it was charged that the waiters on strike were not guilty of the bombardment with bricks of the hotel and restaurant windows but that this violence was the work of gangs of young roughs who followed the marching waiters around and started the trouble just for the sake of excitement.

"Our men have been counselled against all violence," declared the union leaders.

Efforts to spread the strike were continued today with considerable success. The union leaders gave out a list of hotels and restaurants which they claimed had been closed by strike The proprietors of a number of these places admitted today that they were unable to serve their patrons.

The union estimated today that five thousand men were not out on strike, and said 2,000 more would be out before night Neither would admit that there is the slightest possibility of an amicable settlement in the near future.

The engine turned over. Engineer Patriek McBride, of Portage, and Fireman Bulsch were pinned in the cab but escaped serious injury. It seems that Alfonso has been greatly interested on the subject of a trip to the United States since a visit to that country by his war minister's son, and often has expressed a desire to make a journey there. It is understood that the matter is now being seriously considered by the Spanish government with a view to carrying out the desires of the king.

"Women Happy at Sixty."

New York, Jan. 25.—Women who dread the approach of old age may take heart from the words of Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton who gave a gathering of advanced women at the School of Mothercraft last night some new thoughts about grandmotherhood and mellow maturity.

"Women of today is happiest when she is sixty," said the speaker. "The time has passed when we think a woman's life is ended at 35 and there is nothing more for her but to sit at the fire and dream. The older we grow the stronger we are mentally and physically and the woman of today is happy because she has strength and wisdom to use for public service. She is happier far than she was in the Heydey of her youth."

Dr. Morton explained further that the elderly women of today no longer has to sit about the chimney corner being bossed by her daughter-in-law. She has suffrage to interest her and to work for clubs and trips to Europe and cunning grandchildren to play with. In fact she is just beginning to enjoy life when she reaches fifty and at sixty should be a walking smile.

ABDICATION OF THE SULTAN REPORTED

Earthquake Shakes Constantinople and Adds to Terror of People.

SAID TO BE ILL OMEN.

New Ministry, Will, it is Believed, Refuse to Give up Adrianople and Aegean Islands.

London, Jan. 25.—Mohammed V, Sultan of Turkey, has abdicated and the Ottoman republic has been proclaimed by the committee of Union and Progress under the leadership of Enver Bey, according to a special and unconfirmed dispatch today from Bucharest.

Advices from Vienna positively denied that the Sultan had abdicated.

Constantioople, Jan. 25.—The supersition among the Moslems were terrified today by a considerable earthquake which shook the city in the early hours. Walls trembled, windows were broken, and furniture dislodged by the tremor, and some declared that it was an ill omen for the Young Turkish government.

A new national assembly has been chosen and Mahmud Shifket Pasha, the Grand Visor, called the body into session today for a fresh consideration of the joint note of the powers. The body will formulate a reply to the powers for the consideration of the new cabinet and the Government will ignore entirely the action of the Kamil Pasha party, who approved the cessation of Adrianople to the allies.

The new ministry at the suggestion of Enver Bey, postponed consideration of a definite reply to the powers pending the decision of the new parliament.

It was regarded as certain that the new legislative body would refuse to recommend the giving up of Adrianople and the Aegean Islands, but it was believed that the Balkan war would not be resumed. The Young Turks are in control of all branches of the government but they declare they do not want war. It is believed the new government now counts on intervention to end the struggle and hopes also to save the Holy City.

It is believed that the porte is playing heavily the assurance that the powers will not countenance the renewed fighting and that rather than permit hostilities the powers might turn on the allies and compel them to lessen their demands, if Turkey dem on strates that she cannot be coerced.

With Enver Bey, the revolutionary leader installed as military commandant, the city of Constantinople is under most rigid martial law. Guards patrol all the streets, and disorder has almost been entirely suppressed. Last night there were disorderly street fighting but it stopped when a score of men were arrested and jailed.

There was vigorous denial here of the report that the Young Turks were in possession of the palace and that Sultan Mohammed V had been or was to be deposed. Rumors in European capitals had it that Mohammed had met the same fate that Enver Bey and his followers meted out to the former Sultan, Abdul Hamid.

Embezzler Confesses.

High Bridge, N. J., Jan. 25.—Abram L. Beavers, cashier of the First National Bank of this place, and for years a leading citizen and active church worker in this sedate community, will give himself up today to the federal authorities, by his own confession he has embezzled $82,000 from his bank and according to records he owes a Wall street brokerage house $500,000. There is persisted rumors, too, that his defalcations will go to a much higher figure than he now gives.

Beavers will surrender to United States Commissioner Richard Stockton. Reliable information has been received that his counsel, former Governor Foster M. Voorhees, has made arrangements for this, being discovered by Beavers that Deputy Marshall Louis Beekman, armed with a warrant charging him with violation of the United States laws pertaining to national banks, was hot on his trail and that flight would be fruitless.

Formerly it was the custom to allow a certain amount of cigars free of tax which could be used as smokers by the cigarmakers, but under the new ruling revenue collectors will be required to see that every cigar made is taxed.

EXCITEMENT LAST NIGHT

BROTHERS-IN-LAW ENGAGE IN FIGHT AND PISTOL IS DISCHARGED DURING MELEE.

The vicinity of Prince and Royal streets last night about 7:00 o'clock was the scene of considerable excitement, and for a time it was supposed one of the combattants in a fight had been mortally wounded. Considerable relief was afforded when it was ascertained that the man supposed to have been shot was merely suffering from an abrasion on the face, the result of being knocked down.

The arrival of the wagon belonging to the Alexandria Laundry Company on the scene and the transportation to the Alexandria Hospital of the man supposed to have two bullets in him augmented the excitement, which was only alleged when it was ascertained that the pistol shots had gone wild.

May reports were circulated regarding the origin of the fight which had occurred between William Oehlert and A. E. Smoot, the latter, having married Oehlert's sister. Oehlert went to the Relief truck house, where he had located Smoot, and called the latter out. An angry colloquy between the two men followed, which resulted in a fight, during which Oehlert knocked Smoot down. The latter upon falling drew a pistol, which was immediately taken from him by Oehlert. It is claimed the weapon was accidentally discharged twice, but other reports are to the effect that Oehlert, after obtaining possession of it, discharged the pistol in the air and not with intention of shooting his antagonist.

After Smoot had been placed in the hospital Dr. Jones made an examination and stated that he was uninjured so far as pistol shots were concerned, but that he had emerged from the fight with a bruised face.

Smoot later left for his home, and Oehlert, who was on his way to the station house with the pistol, was met by Sergeant Scott, who accompanied him thither.

He gave security for his appearance in the Police Court this morning, his father becoming his surety.

Both men were in the court when the case was called. Gardner L. Boothe was counsel for Smoot. Mr. Smoot identified the pistol as his own this morning in court.

It was necessary to postpone an investigation of the case until Tuesday next in order to secure a witness, a soldier from Fort Hunt, who was, it is said, an eye-witness of the trouble.

Family troubles were the cause of the fight.

NEWS OF THE OLD DOMINION.

EXCITEMENT IN NEWPORT NEWS.

Negro Accused of Brutal Assault Confesses Crime.

Newport News, Va., Jan. 25.—While waiting for a train to this city at the Main street station Richmond, Thursday, James Goode, alias Joe Jones, the negro wanted for the brutal assault last Monday on Julius Smith a merchant is said to have confessed his crime to Detective Sergeant S. G. Pearson, of the local force. Goode implicated another negro, Robert Bates who has been suspected from the first and who was jailed Thursday. Feeling against the negroes runs high among the colored people of this city. and the sergeant brought his man back three hours ahead of scheduled time to avoid trouble. Goode told the sergeant, it is said, that he and Bates had planned to kill Charles Fisch, a well known man about town, about 2 o'clock Monday morning but that Fisch eluded them in some way. He is known to carry large sums of money on his person.

Failing to get this man the negroes waited for Smith to open his store. The two entered, and, according to Goode, while the latter watched the front door, Bates took the merchant to the rear of the store to get some wood,and then struck him down with a two foot spike which Bates was carrying concealed in his trousers. Two blows were struck. Smith is still living, but has not regained consciousness and according to the physicians cannot live.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

Man, Hurrying to Ill Wife, Wakes up in The Woods.

Lynchburg, Va., Jan. 25.—One of the boldest highway robberies occurring in this section in some time took place Thursday night when James E. Wood, of this city, was chloroformed and relieved of $55 while riding upon a freight train between the Kinney yards and Appomattox.

When Wood recovered his senses from the drug he was lying upon the ground in the woods two miles this side of Appomattox, towards which he was going. It was about day and he had evidently been in the power of the anesthetic since baut ten o'clock Thursday night, when he was attacked by two men. He was on his way to see his wife, sick in Appomattox, and took a freight because no passenger was scheduled near that hour.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.

Two Men Mangled Almost Beyond Recognition.

Fincastle, Va., Jan. 25.—An accident which may prove fatal to two men and serious injuries to the third, occurred at the Virginia Iron, Coal and Coke Company's quarries, a mile east of Buchanan, Wednesday.

C. H. Combs, formerly of Big Stone Gap, and D. H. Schwartz, of Buchanan, were mangled almost beyond recognition while at work on the crusher. They were hurried to Roanoke to a hospital, though little hope was held out for their recovery.

R. M. McCullochs, the third, was a laborer, who was injured.

RACE TRACK PROCEEDINGS.

Holds That Circuit Court is Without Jurisdiction.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 25.—Judge J. F. West, sitting in the Jamestown race-track prosecutions by special designation of Governor Mann has decided that under the statute law of Virginia, as written, the circuit (jury) courts of the states are without original concurrent jurisdiction for the trial of indictments charging race-track book-making, and that the pending prosecutions must be heard in magistrate's court, where original jurisdiction lies exclusively.

The trials were set for hearing at Ocean View yesterday.

Judge West, in giving decision, said that the best interest of the state of Virginia demands that the laws be otherwise, but as he found them written he was forced to decide that the circuit courts were without concurrent jurisdiction and that original jurisdiction lies solely in the magesterial court. The cases can therefore not reach the uper court for trial except in the event of conviction in the lower court and then on appeal by the defense.

ALLEGED KIDNAPPING.

Mill Operative to Bring Matters to Attention of Court.

Danville, Va., Jan. 25.—Following the alleged kidnapping of his 14-year-old son by police officers, E. D. Hamlet, a Schoolfield mill operative, has employed counsel to make formal complaint in the county court and to set on foot an investigation which may result in a charge of misfeasance being preferred against J. C. Thornton, officer at Schoolfield.

Gus Hamlete, his fourteen year old son, is wanted at Gatewood, North Carolina, on a charge of rocking a schoolhouse nearby. Before the warrant was executed the family removed to Schoolfield, and last week the boy was arrested at his father's home by Officer Thornton in the presence of the two North Carolina officers. It is claimed that Thornton insisted that the boy being turned over to the Carolina officers and this was done, the boy being taken to Gatewood that evening, tried and held for the grand jury. Thornton maintains that the boy consented to go with the officers, but Hamlet is emphatic in stating that the officer insisted on the boy being carried over the border and that he was not given a chance to secure extradition.

VIRGINIA BEATS WEST.

Corn Club Boy From Amherst Seventh in List in Country.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 25.—Virginia distanced all northern and western states in the showing made the past year by corn club boys under the farm demonstration work. Frank G. Brockman, of Amherst, the prize-winner from this State, who was in Washington this week seeing the city as the guest of the Department, raised 167 bushels of corn on his acre, while the highest yield made in any state north of the Mason and Dixon line was in Illinois, where the limit was 150.45 bushels.

This is regarded as a remarkable showing considering the fact that the middle west is the home of corn growing. The Illinois yield, compiled this week ranged from 59 to 150 bushels.

The prize-winner in Massachusetts raised only 60.90 bushels. On the other hand the Iowa boy raised 141.45 bushels at an average cost of only 9 3-8c.

Young Brockman stands seventh in the United States for total production of corn on an acre. First place is taken by Ernest M. Joyce, of Venters, S. C., with 207 bushels, and second place by Carlous Reddock, of Summerland, Miss., with 206.06 bushels.

Killed by Broken Cable.

Arvonia, Va., Jan. 25.—William Hall, colored, of Penlan, near here, met a horrible death a few days ago, when one of the long and tightly stretched cables of the quarry of the Arvonia Slate Manufacturing Company broke away from its moorings and plunged into the quarry pit,striking Hall on the back of the skull and killing him instantly.

BOY SHOOTS SISTER.

Youngster Wounds Girl While Playing With Revolver.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 25.—Ethel Perkinson, thirteen years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Perkinson, of 2417 Venable street, was shot and dangerously wounded Thursday afternoon by her 5-year-old brother, Waverly, who was playing with a 38-calibre revolver. The bullet entered the girl's right cheek below the eye and passed out back of the right ear. She may recover.

The shooting took place while Mr. and Mrs. Perkinson and other members of the family were away from home. While his sister was reading the boy took the revolver from the bureau drawer.

The child snapped the trigger several times and there was only harmless clicks as there was but one cartridge in the weapon. When he aimed it as his sister and pulled the trigger the hammer fell upon the shell and the bullet was discharged. The girl fell from chair in which she was sitting but did not lose consciousness The girl was soon taken to the city hospital.

When he saw that he had wounded his little sister the little fellow burst into tears.

CANNON PLACES LEE AND DAVIS ON CONSTEL - LATION.

For an hour yesterday the Lincoln Memorial bill was again a storm center of discussion of the House, during which Mr. Cannon shook his finger at the Washington-Gettysburg highway advocates and told them "it is a profanation of that great man's name when it is proposed to use it as an argument for good roads."

"There are certain great characters that will dwell in the history of the country," said Mr. Cannon, "first, and barely first, Washington; second, Lincoln; third, Lee, a great man, a great general who did his duty from his patriotic standpoint; fourth Jefferson Davis, a great man performing a great service for the republic as he saw his duty.

"A hundred years from now the ordinary reader will recall this period and there will be in the mouths of the school children the names of Wash ington, Lincoln, Grant, Lee and Jefferson Davis. But you will have to search the Congressional Record and the encyclopadias to find out about the balance of us who have been speakers members of Congress in the House and Senate.

"'I trust that the Washington manhave been speaker for eight years. They will say:

"It does appear that there was a man from Illinois by the name of Cannon, but I don't know much about him; there was another man by the name of Cannon in Congress from Utah, and it was said that he had 17 wives.'

"I trust that the Washingto nmonument and the Lee monument, holding the hollowed dust of the Union and Confederate dead, in the fullness of time will be connected with the site of the proposed Lincoln monument by a bridge to that great burial place."

The speaker favored the Greek temple project and said he would have preferred to have it at Soldiers' Home, but was overruled by the majority of the commission.

The memorial bill will be taken up in the House next Wednesday.

The discussion was brought to the front by an explanation of the filibustering tactics of the past few days in the house. Representative Garner, of Texas, warmly advised Minority Leader Mann that he was not attempting a filibuster on Wednesday when he offered amendments to the Township bill. Mr. Mann came back and served notice that the Democratic opposition to the Lincoln memorial would have a stony road to travel if they attempted to keep the bill sidetracked.

For a while the House, with nearly every member in his seat, was in an uproar. When Minority Leader Mann had replied to Mr. Garner Representative Sherley, of Kentucky, jumped to his feet and waved his hands at Chairman Sparkman, of the Rivers and Harbors Committee, urging him to get recognition for consideration of his bill before another outburst of feeling and oratory should sweep the House.

Mr. Cannon, however, had caught Speaker Clark's eye and asked for 10 minutes.

When Mr. Cannon started speaking members flocked above him; others stood in the aisles with hands in their ears in order to catch the words.

The Senate went on record the second time in favor of the Greek temple project in Washington.

CONTACT BETWEEN PREACHER AND PEOPLE.

Lyman Abbott in the Outlook says: "I have long been convinced that one cause of the apparent failure of efficiency in the church is the dimunition of pastoral service. Neither eloquence of preaching in the pulpit nor skill of administration in the parish can take the place of personal contact between the preacher and his people. If I had the time and strength, I would rather talk with 500 individual inquirers who sought me out for conference than to preach to a congregation of 5000 auditors who came to listen and went away, many of them to forget what they had heard. In these personal conferences the pastor or teacher comes in direct contact with the individual soul. He knows the doubts, the difficulties, the dangers of the individual. He tries to meet those difficulties with his solutions, those doubts withhis arguments, those dangers with his counsels, and finds, if he is open-minded, wherein the solutions fail to solve, the arguments fail to convince and the counsels fail to guide. He gets just what he does not get in the pulpit, the response of the soul, and knows, at least in a little degree, wherein he has succeeded, wherein he has failed. The ordinary method of pastoral visiting apparently in vogue in our day seems to me of very trifling use. The pastor goes to the house, makes his formal call and departs. He rarely sees the men, and not infrequently the women are sorry he has come and glad when he has gone. He has no right to demand their confidence, and, interrupted perhaps in their social engaements, or their domestic duties, they are, at the time of the call, in no mood to give him their confidence. He perhaps establishes a little social relationship which makes his ministry on the next Sabbath slightly more effective. Rarely can he do more than this."

UP IN ARMS.

Our venerable and respected contempary, the Alexandria Gazette is up in arms over the decision handed down by Judge Gordon in the annexation case. One editorial declares that the decision is not fair to the citizens of that fair city of Alexandra and yet another article from the facile pen of its editor, analyses the decision of the Judge and picks flaws here and there with his opinion until verily it resembles the proverbial sieve. In all of this however, the Gazette has acted with becoming dignity and has been careful that it has not treated the Court with any disrespect or discourtesy but nevertheless the Gazette is mad and mad all over, nad its words of advice in closing one of its editorials is as follows: "Take the case to the Court of Appeals and at least make an effort to throw off the stigma of the opinion of the lower court." We fail to see wherein any stigma is attached to the city by reason of the decision. The Judge was particularly nice we thought towards the city and was even at times complimentary and at all times sympathetic.

We always read with interest the editorials of the Gazette, and we have made no exception to the rule during its rantings upon why they should have won the annexation fight. The Gazette is a little peeved but time will cure it, as it does all other troubles. The Gazette is certainly a patriotic paper, however, and they deserve credit for that as well as many other virtues that they possess.—The Commonwealth, Alexandria County.

Years ago this Alexandria citizen told in a public statement the benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills.

The statement is now confirmed—the testimony complete. Instances like this are numerous. They doubly prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. Can any Alexandria reader demand more convincing proof? It's Alexandria testimony—it may be investigated.

Mrs. Anine Scott, 110 Prince street, Alexandria, Va., says: "I am the same strong friend to Doan's Kidney Pills today, as I was in 1910 when I publicly told of the cure they had made for me. This cure has been lasting, but I occasionally use Doan's Kidney Pills as a preventive. I had pains in my back and I could not rest well. In the morning I always felt tired and worn out, and I also had dizzy spells. Doan's Kidney Pills did such good world that it is a pleasure to recommend them to other kidney sufferers."

Lady in Goodwater Describes Her Distressing Experience and Tells How She Was Finally Relieved.

Goodwater, Mo.—"Ever since I was a little girl," says Mrs. Riley Laramore, "I was a great sufferer from dyspepsia.

I suffered misery after eating, and had terrible heartburn.

I thought I had to suffer this way as long as I lived, but when I began to take Thedford's Black-Draught, in small doses, every night, the heartburn was all gone in a few days, and I could eat without distress.

I took two small packages in all, and although that was some time ago, the dyspepsia has not returned.

I speak a good word for Thedford's Black-Draught whenever I have the opportunity."

If eating causes distress, we urge you to try Thedford's Black-Draught. It cleanses the system, helps the stomach to digest its food, regulates the bowels, and stimulates the liver.

It acts gently and is without bad after effects. Try it. Price 25c.

A BOMB

It Was an Elephant Its Owner Wanted to Get Rid Of

By JEROME B. TORRENT

Lockwood, a graduate of a technological institution, accepted a position in the works of the Plowman's Harvester company and in time was sent to Russia to establish a plant for the manufacture of its machines.

Lockwood occupied a suit of rooms in a bachelor apartment house in St. Petersburg. One morning as he was going out a young girl who was passing suddenly turned and, running up the steps, brushed past him and entered the house. She appeared to be very much agitated. There was something so incongruous in her action in entering the abode of men that Lockwood turned and went after her to learn something more about her. She began to speak to him rapidly and earnestly in the Russian language, of which he had made a study before leaving America and in which he had considerable practice since.

"Oh, mercy!" she said. "The mines, the mines! I wouldn't mind to die. But Kara! I can't endure the thought."

"What is it?" asked Lockwood, astonished.

"I have a bomb concealed on my person. Help me to get rid of it. Oh, do help me! If it is found on me I shall be sent to those terrible mines."

The girl kept looking at the door which Lockwood had closed as though dreading that some one would open it and come in. So pitiful was she that he was tempted to do a very foolish thing—that is, relieve her of the bomb she carried. But he had no mind to go to Siberia in her stead, and he resisted the impulse, asking for more information. She told her story briefly and hurriedly:

"I am a member of a revolutionary circle. Yesterday I received an order to go to a certain place where I would find a woman who would give me a bomb that I was to carry to another place. I went there, received the bomb and was taking it away when, looking back, I saw a man whose eyes were fixed upon me, and I was sure he followed me. I made a tortuous course, taking the most crowded streets and mingling with the greatest crowds. But whenever I looked back the man was sure to be near, though either looking in a shop window or reading a sign or a billboard. He was following me to see where I would go. Desperate, seeing you coming out of this house, I resolved to come in. I do not know who lives here; I simply entered at a venture. I believe the man who is following me will be here directly. I hoped I might get rid of the bomb before he came."

Lockwood listened to this intensely spoken statement, his sympathy going out to the speaker. At any moment a government official might enter and find the girl talking to him, a bomb on her person, doubtless intended to kill some official or possibly a member of the imperial family. Lockwood was not a fool; he was a man. And here was a girl whom by taking a risk he might save from that which would be worse than death, a lifelong imprisonment in the mines of Kara. A great struggle was going on within him between his chivalrous manhood and his dread of the fate for himself of which the girl stood in danger

There was a ring at the front door bell. All color left his companion's face. This and the look of despair and appeal she gave him turned the scale.

"Give me the bomb," he said.

Thrusting her hand into an inside pocket of the fur coat she wore, she took out a glass globe the size of a small orange and gave it to him. He put it in a pocket of his overcoat, saying to her hurriedly, "This is a man's apartment house; you are my sister," and, going to the door, opened it.

A man stood outside, and Lockwood without flinching waited for him to speak. The girl stood in the hall; but, having been relieved of the bomb, she was able to gather her faculties and appeared perfectly cool, looking at the man who had been following her with a meaningless stare. He seemed somewhat taken aback at this reception.

"Whom do you wish to see?" asked Lockwood.

"Who lives in this house?" was the reply.

"It is a bachelor apartment house."

"A bachelor apartment house! In that case what is the young lady doing here?"

"Are you a government official?"

The man hesitated, but finally admitted that he was.

"Very well. If you are a government official and have come here for a purpose you are welcome to go about that purpose. I am needed at my place of business, being an American resident of St. Petersburg. If you want anything of me I beg you to make haste; otherwise I will go at once."

"I want nothing of you," said the man.

"And the young lady?"

The official appeared to be puzzled. He alone knew his object in shadowing the girl, but it was probable that the place from which she had taken the bomb having been suspected by the police, he had been ordered to watch it and follow any one leaving it with a view to being led to another rendezvous and trapping conspirators. In this case he had found but little a house that was not likely a headquarters of a revolutionary circle, but he was not sure about it. He was hesitating whether to make a search or get further instructions from his superiors. Had he known the object of the girl's visit to the suspected place and that she had brought away a bomb he would have called assistance and searched her and, not finding it, would have left no stone unturned to discover where it was.

Presently, without a word, the official turned and without another word went down the steps and away. No sooner had the door closed behind him than the girl staggered, swooning, and fell into Lockwood's arms. The intensity of feeling in him was akin and equal to that in her. He had saved her, at least for the present, from those dreadful Kara mines, where the sufferings of the prisoners are known throughout the world. To do this he had taken on himself the risk of the doom that had threatened her. The time that had elapsed since he first saw her, including the period of the hurried interview between him and the government official, had occupied scarcely five minutes. Yet is it to be wondered at that, moved by so narrow an escape from so terrible a doom for one and probably for both, Lockwood should have given her a kiss.

Then suddenly it occurred to him that the drama was not yet played. The eye of the government had not closed with the closing of the door. He held a swooned revolutionist in his arms. A deadly bomb was in his pocket. As for the girl, he kissed her back to life. Then when she had gathered her senses he began to consult with her what they should do with the bomb. But he soon discovered that he could not rely on her for any help in planning its disposal. The only thing she could do was to take it to the place she had been directed to take it, but her experience had unnerved her, and she was liable to be shadowed. Besides, Lockwood did not propose to become any further implicated in a projected assassination. He did propose that the bomb should not injure any one. But how get rid of it? He could not lose it. He could not explode it. It occurred to him that he might bury it. But where? Surely not in the cement floored basement of the house where they were. And he dared not go out on the street with it on his person. Worst of all, he dared not keep it about him. If he could get it to the plant he had built for the Harvester company he represented he could bury it there. Indeed, he might eat it up with chemicals, for he was well versed in analytical chemistry. But for every method of getting rid of it an "if" stood in the way. The only way he did not consider at all was to tell the girl to take her bomb and be gone.

However, when he noticed that she was waiting for him to tell her what to do next he took her address and advised her to go forth looking as unconcerned as possible and directly home. So long as she had nothing at home incriminating she need not worry, for there were other persons in the building she had visited than the woman from whom she had received the bomb. He opened the door, and she went home, all the way expecting to see her shadower, but she did not.

Lockwood did not dare leave the bomb in his room, fearing that the police might search it during his absence. Procuring the necessary carpenter's tools, he took up a board in the floor of his room and, wrapping the bomb in cotton, put it between joists and nailed the board down again.

It was fortunate that he took this precaution, for when he returned in the evening he found that the police had ransacked every nook and cranny in the house. Lockwood felt a certain relief at this, for it would give him time to get rid of the cursed bomb. He waited a week, attending to his business as usual and not showing the least concern, for he knew that both he and the fair revolutionist were being watched. He dared not remove the bomb, even at midnight, lest some police officer arrest him with it on him.

So the matter remained as it was till at last Lockwood, not daring to remove the bomb from his quarters, finally decided to remove himself from them. This he did without canceling his lease and after several weeks' absence, when the police had probably ceased to connect him with them, he returned to them one night when he would not be noticed and, taking the bomb, carried it to his place of business. It is buried deep in the earth on the premises, but where no one except Lockwood knows, for he buried it himself.

The incident came near breaking up his work in St. Petersburg. Indeed, it did so in the end, for he never felt easy after it occurred and finally wrote his principals to send some one to take his place. They did so, and he left Russia, intending never to see it again.

During his stay there he did not dare meet the girl he had saved, but on reaching Berlin he wrote her, giving his permanent address in Paris. For a long while he received no reply. Then one day when in London he received a letter from her stating that she was in that city. Lockwood called to see her and was surprised to find her dressed as a lady. During the brief period they were together in St. Petersburg her apparel had been such as is worn by the lower classes.

A meeting where they did not dread to be pounced upon by the police was naturally full of feeling. The girl's name was Nathalie Ivanovitch, and she was the daughter of a general in the army. Lockwood convinced her that assassination was not the way to redress wrongs and finally persuaded her to go to America with him as his wife.

Milady's Mirror

Hair During Illness.

Whenever a person is ill at home one of the points most likely to be neglected is the care of the hair. In a great many cases women recover from an illness of only a few days to find their hair so snarled and matted that it almost is impossible ever to remove the tangles.

If on the first day of an illness the hair is properly taken care of there need be no occasion for this condition. The hair should be parted down the center and braided in two braids. The braids should commence far enough toward the front that the patient will not lie on them when the back of her head is on the pillow. The hair should be combed at least once a day. The patient should lie on her side, and then one-half of the hair can be dressed without any trouble, no matter how sick the patient may be.

In combing the hair one should commence at the ends, gradually removing the tangles by working upward. If the hair is grasped by the left hand between the roots and the part being combed the patient will not complain of the pulling.

If the hair is badly tangled olive oil may be applied, which will greatly lessen the labor. Where the matting is extensive it is not best to try to comb out all tangles at once, as it would be too much of a tax on the patient. A few strands can be separated at a time, then braided so as not to become tangled again.

When a patient is compelled to lie in bed for a number of weeks the hair may be washed without much inconvenience and without danger to the patient. The pillow should be well protected by a rubber sheet and the patient moved as near the edge of the bed as possible. Two basins of rather hot water, one containing the shampoo mixture and the other for rinsing, should be in readiness. One side of the hair should be washed at a time, then rinsed well. The hair and scalp may be nearly dried very quickly with several towels. After the shampoo the hair should remain spread out on the pillow for some time until thoroughly dry. A little alcohol may be rubbed into the scalp after rinsing. Care should be taken that the patient is not exposed to a draft for some time.

It is in the little details, such as the care of the hair, the teeth and the finger nails, that the thoroughness and training of a nurse are best shown. The finger nails should be given proper care every day as well as the hair, while the teeth need attention several times a day.

Have You a Pretty Back?

The woman is to be pitied who, no matter how beautiful her face or form, lacks the modish back, with its wonderful curves and rounded lines. Of no part of the body is it quite so true that curves are the lines of beauty as it is of the back.

If you chance to possess a back that is all angles instead of curves then it is evident that you must eschew decolete dresses, as for the next few months frocks cut so as to expose a goodly portion of the back will be all the rage.

The back that fascinates the eye is slender, but not thin. It is overlaid with a veiling of firm white flesh. It slopes gently into the waist line by almost imperceptible degrees. Have you such a back, lady fair?

One thing that every self respecting back should have is a dimple in the center of each shoulder blade. If your back is dimpleless it might be a good idea to treat it to a fifteen minute massage with cod liver oil every night, as this fattening treatment will bring dimples if anything will.

Since the back to be pretty must be white and satiny the wise little maiden scrubs it nightly with a bath brush fairly dripping with hot soda water. What kind of water is this? Simply water to which have been added two heaping tablespoonfuls of ordinary baking soda and a small handful of shredded soap. This simple skin cleanser and whitener does masterly work. Try it and see if you do not agree.

Treatment For Fine Skins.

Some girls have such fine skin that during the cold weather it is necessary for them to wear a veil almost all the time to keep it from chapping. If a protective agent such as powder be used it is absolutely necessary that it be pure, as the more delicate the skin the more care must be exercised in what is used upon it.

The following preparation is most reliable. If properly applied it will protect the skin:

Mix and sift together several times until free from lumps three ounces each of rice flour and rice starch, one and one-half ounces of carbonate of magnesia, one quarter of an ounce of finely powdered orris root, half an ounce of boric acid and ten drops of essence of rose.

Before applying to the face all the skin should first have a previous application of a thin film of cold cream or almond oil.

For the Gums.

To harden the gums try a wash made of hot water, one pint; borax, one ounce, and a teaspoonful each of spirits of camphor and myrrh. Dissolve the borax in the hot water and let cool before adding the other ingredients.

POLK MILLER IN

"Old Times Down South"

An evening of Old Pantation, and War Stories and Songs by Polk Miller assisted by Col. "Tom Barker" and Mr. Miller's famous QUARTETTE OF GENUINE OLD VIRGINIA NEGROES.

Mr. Miller tells stories of his boyhood days on a Virginia plantation, and gives humoreous Sketches, Recitations and Dialect Stories and Songs, impersonating the old Southern Negro accompanying himself on the Banjo.

WHAT GENERAL FITZHUGH LEE SAID OF HIM:

"When Polk Miller is gone, the man who can best tell of the Old South will have passed away. He has no predecessor, has no contemporary,and will have no successor."

Two Full Hours of Mirth and Music

EDUCATIONAL, AND AS AMUSING TO CHILDREN As IT IS ENTERTAINING TO GROWN PEOPLE.

Songs, Stories, Dialects, Recitations, Banjo Picking, and the Harmonious Blending of the natural voices of Genuine negroes come in such quick succession you don't have time to get tired.

WHAT "MARK TWAIN' SAID:

"Those who failed to hear Polk Miller and his wonderful quartet at Carnegie Hall last night, missed about the only thing now left that is originally, and utterly American. I can never forget that pair of musical earthquakes—the Water melon Song, and Old Dan Tucker."

Polk Miller's Quartette

This quartette was organized by Mr. Polk Miller for use in his entertainment of "Old Times Down South." They are not such as are seen in vaudeville performances, and are not of the cake walkin' Dude variety, but the REAL THING! THEY IMITATE NOBODY! As to their voices, they are the sweet, though uncultivated results of nature, producing a harmony unequalled by the professional, and because natural, go straight to the hearts of the people.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, Jan. 25—Representative Jones, of Virginia has prepared a speech on Phillippine Independence which he is going to deliver on the floor of the House either late today or Monday. In this speech Mr. Jones is going to answer the speech recently made by President Taft in which the latter criticised the platform adopted at the Democratic convention in Baltimore on the Philippine question. It is understood that the Virginia Congressman will use some rather sharp language in answering Mr. Taft. He is going to show that the maintenance of the Phillippines is a big financial burden upon the American people and that the commission which governs the Islands is wasteful in its administration.

No confirmation can be had in Washington of the report that the Virginia militia is not to participated in the inaugural parade to be held on 4th of March. It has been rumored around the capital for the past four or five days that Virginia had no money with which to send her militia to the capital. The story went that Governor Mann has written General Leonard Wood, chief marshal, to this effect. General Wood could not be found today, but his aides say that they have not heard of the so-acalled Mann letter. Senator Swanson has engaged quarters for the troops and in view of this fact it is generally thought that the Virginia troops will be in Washngton on the day of March 4th.

Repeal of that part of the Panama canal act granting free tolls to coast wise vessels will be one of the first requests of President Wilson to Congress ,according to the prediction today of Chairman Adamson of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, which framed the Panama law. He issued a formal statement criticising the prsent dispute with Great Britain.

Improvement in the revolutionary situation throughout Mexico was indicated in official dispatches today Consul Letcher at Chihuahua reported that negotiations between the Federals and rebels for cessation of hostilities were nearing completion. The consul at San Louis Potosi wired that this district is quiet but that miners are threatening to strike. Passenger trains carrying Federal guards are now running in Saltillo. Mexican rebels are reported in the vicinity of Tlahualilo and the managers of several estates there have asked Mexico city for protection.

By a vote of 166 to 71, the House late today adopted a conference report on the Dillingham-Burnett immigration bill, returning in the measure the "literacy test" to which vigorous objection was made during the heated debate that marked consideration of the bill The bill will probably be approved by the Senate.

New York—Mrs. Lena Weiss, second of Charles Weiss' five wives suggested to the court that the bigamist be forced to support all his better halves as a punishment.

Mysterious Death.

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 25.—Mystery surrounds the finding of the bodies of C. P. Long, wealthy merchant, and that of a beautiful young woman, yet unidentified, in Long's place of business early today.

Entering to clean up the place the janitor discovered the bodies each with a bullet hole in the head.
